

Children In History

Worksheet 2

Runaway

Directions:

1. Think over what you have learned about Meg and Robbie. You know that they are both resourceful and dependable when faced with a crisis; that they are concerned about their brother, Arthur who has returned from the war and that their father trusts them around the train engines.
2. Use what you know of Meg or Robbie to write up a journal kept by either of them for three days. This journal will begin the day before the runaway train, cover the day of the runaway and the day following it.
3. You may add extra information not given in the story but it must be true to the time of the story and true to the character of Meg or Robbie.
